

WANT TO JOIN THE RESEARCH TEAM?

A crucial component of our project is collaborating with the sports community, which is also vitally important to us when collecting data. For this reason, interviews with athletes who were sanctioned for doping are conducted by elite athletes (our co-researchers) rather than scientists. The aim is to create a peer-to-peer situation where you as an interviewer share a common basis of experience with your interviewees.

WHO WE NEED

Elite athletes from any sports who

- are retired / actively competing
- ideally have relevant education at graduate level
- are interested in the overall topic of anti-doping
- are interested in conducting life-story interviews with sanctioned athletes

WHAT WE OFFER

- insights into anti-doping research
- active participation in the research process
- online training in qualitative research and interview techniques
